Nolan elected Upland mayor

McGilloway beats back challenger

By David Madsen

Councilman Robert Nolan and Planning Commissioner Tom McGilloway easily defeated their two opponents to win their Upland Council contests last week.

Nolan won the mayor's post by outpolling Councilman Frank Carpenter 2,593 votes, or 55.8 percent of the vote, to 2,053 votes, or 44.1 percent.

McGilloway crushed write-in candidate Barbara Cooke 3,472 votes, or 83.4 of the vote, to 621 votes, or 16 percent.

In other election activity City Treasurer Walter F. Reardon was re-elected to his post. He was unopposed.

Only 14.9 percent of the city's registered voters went to the polls, with another 2.4 percent turning in absentee ballots for a total turnout of 17.4 percent.

Nolan captured the bulk of the city's 24 voter precincts and saw his margin of victory widen as ballots carrying more of the vote came in and were counted.

He attributed his victory to addressing issues like traffic and accountability.

"The key issue was traffic. I talked about it two years ago and I was the only one who has continued to address the issue," said Nolan.

Carpenter, who is two years into his present council term and therefore will be on the council another two years, said he would have no trouble working with Nolan.

"I did the best job I could. I don't have a thing to apologize for," Carpenter said.

McGilloway credited his substantial victory to strong name identification and staying involved in city activities.

"A lot of preparation went into this. It all started two years ago," he said.

Cooke's poor showing was attributed to getting too late a start in the campaign and the

Be a PAL, take responsibility for your pet

By Suzanne Sproul

Thousands of dogs and cats are born each year already condemned to die.

Because owners have failed to have their pets spayed or neutered, many adorable but unwanted animals are either dumped on street corners to fend for themselves or left at local shelters. The shelters try to provide the animals with loving homes but those are hard to find. And so many die.

But Pomona Valley Humane Society and the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals is launching a "Be a PAL — Prevent a Litter" campaign aimed at educating the public about responsible ownership.

Mayors Donna Smith of Pomona and Fred Aguire of Chino and representatives from other local municipalities joined ceremonies last week proclaiming April as "Be a PAL — Prevent a Litter" month.

William Harford, Humane Society executive director, said the Pomona shelter has 27,700 reasons why the campaign is needed. Last year, alone, the shelter had to handle that many animals.

"We want this campaign to be the start of a team effort on the part of the Humane Society, the local cities, the community and schoolchildren, to help reduce the number of animals coming into the shelter by 10 percent during the next five years," Harford said.

"We have too many unwanted pets in our communities. This campaign to educate the public can and will make a difference," he told a group of society supporters during a "Happy No Birthday" party luncheon.

The "Happy No Birthday" party theme included a program by the Westmont Elementary School Cobra Choir in Pomona. The children sang (to the tune of "Happy Birthday") to all animals and expressed their wishes that all homeless animals would find homes and that those not yet born would not come into the world unless they were wanted.

Candidates faced tough odds

By David Madsen

Councilman Robert Nolan and write-in candidate Barbara Cooke both faced tough odds in last week's Upland Council election.

Nolan was running against long-time Councilman Frank Carpenter in the mayoral race.

Carpenter was considered a formidable opponent because of his establishment backing and considerable campaign war chest.

Because his term was expiring, Nolan would have been off the council if he had lost the race.

Cooke began her council campaign just 28 days before the election and faced an uphill battle against Planning Commissioner Thomas McGilloway.

McGilloway was the only council candidate to qualify for the ballot.

McGilloway also carried high name identification with city voters, following his 1986 council race when he failed to be elected by 16 votes.

This election's final vote count gave Nolan 2,593 votes to Carpenter's 2,053 and McGilloway captured 3,472 votes to Cooke's 621.

Nolan said a change in resident's opinions about the type of leadership they wanted in the city was the main reason for his victory.

"People want accountability, that's the story," said Nolan.

Carpenter was unable to explain Nolan's strong showing, but said he would be able to work with Nolan in the future on the council.

Carpenter has two years remaining on his present council term.

Cooke credited her lopsided defeat to the difficulties involved in running a write-in campaign and not having enough time.

"While our campaign was 28-dayslong, we technically didn't really get started until April 1," she said.

Cooke said her campaign was able to pick up 621 votes in just two weeks.

"I know we could have garnered more votes if my name was on the ballot. The (balloting) process made it difficult for people to vote for me," she said.

Concerning her future political plans, Cooke said she would not rule out another run at the council.

"Whenever I can be of service, I will be," she added.

McGilloway attributed his victory to nearly two years of preparation.

difficulty of conducting a write-in campaign.

"She did real well for a write-in candidate. We learned a lot. Tomorrow is the first day of our next campaign two years from now," said Cooke's camapaign manager, Pat Mc Donough.

Nolan, 59, is an Upland junior high principal and first was elected to the council in 1984.

His only chance of remaining on the council was to win, because his regular four-year term expires this month. Nolan's decision to run also affected the race for his own undefended seat, prompting the race between Cooke and McGilloway.

Carpenter, 63, a retired pharmaceutical salesman, sought to move up to the city's top post after eight years of service on the council.

He first was appointed to the council in 1980 and elected in 1982 and 1986.

Cooke, 49, who owns her own real estate company, was making her first attempt at elected office.

Cooke launched her write-in campaign 28 days ago and spent an estimated $2,500 on the race.

Water conservation resolution passes

A state Senate committee unanimously passed a water conservation resolution first proposed by a class of eight-graders taught by a Rancho Cucamonga resident.

One of teacher Alan Haskvitz's social studies classes at Suzanne Elementary School in Walnut trekked to the state capital last week to address the senate governmental organization committee on their proposal to urge that all public buildings be landscaped with greenery that requires no watering.

The "Xeriscape" proposal, presented by Sen. William Campbell, R-Industry, was accepted with open arms, according to Haskvitz, who has made the Senate resolution a class project, in order to learn how legislation is passed.

Haskvitz's eighth-graders were given tips on lobbying by professional lobbyists and given a tour of Sacramento on their day-trip.

R.C. officials may challenge state panel regulation

By Lee Peterson

Rancho Cucamonga city officials are considering a challenge to a state Fair Political Practices Commission regulation that recently forced the resignation of two city commissioners.

Commissioners who make contact with City Hall on a separate, personal basis are violating the state's regulations, according to Rancho Cucamonga City Attorney James Markman.

The city's Park and Recreation Commission and the Public Safety Commission lost one member each after Markman discovered the regulation in his research for another client city government.

Public officials in any capacity are forbidden from appearing before that public entity on personal business, even if the public function is unconnected to the business, Markman said.

"You are assumed to be improperly influencing the decision of the city or entity," Markman said.

Two Rancho Cucamonga city commissioners, Pete Pitassi and Bob Dutton, left their posts to avoid violating the state FPPC regulation upon Markman's advice. Commission members serve without pay.

Markman said he didn't want to see them go, but he did not want any of his commissioners to risk violating the state regulations.

"Is the City Council really influenced because Bob Dutton is a public safety commissioner? In small communities, this regulation will have a devastating brain drain effect," Markman said.

"I think it's an overbroad regulation," he added.

Rancho Cucamonga Mayor Dennis L. Stout said the city should request that the FPPC review the regulation to determine if it was meant to prevent people like Pitassi and Dutton from serving.

Chili cookoff

The city of Montclair is sponsoring an event for the entire community.

The second annual chili cookoff and open air market is planned April 30 in conjunction with the city's 32nd birthday celebration.

The event will take place at the Montclair Community Center, 5111 Benito St., from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Admission to the day's activities is free.

Entertainments, booth operators and contest participants are being sought to participate. Booth rentals for the open air market range from $50 for a commercial and/or food booth to $15 for a non-profit organization rental. In addition participants are encouraged to participate in the chili cook-off. Entry fee is $15 plus two gallons of pre-cooked chili.

All entrants of the chili cookoff must be members of the International Chili Society.

In addition, members of the Pomona Valley Model A Car Club will be displaying their cars, and will be available to talk about their cars.

In the evening a dinner/dance will be held beginning at 7. Entertainment will begin at 8 with a square dancing demonstration. Tickets are available at the Montclair Chamber of Commerce for $10 per person. For information, call 626-8571, extension 254.

Women voters

Speakers to present the pros and cons of the June 6 ballot measures are available free to any local organization from the League of Women Voters of Claremont.

Speakers who are qualified to give impartial information may be arranged for by calling 624-9457 or 626-4365.

YMCA swim lessons

Registration for the West End YMCA's summer swim lessons has opened. Sign-ups will be held at 215 W. C St., Ontario. The program is held in Upland, Ontario, Rancho Cucamonga, Chino and Montclair and involves five levels of swimming instruction.

Classes will run in two-week sessions, beginning June 20. For more information, call 986-5847.
